6 CONSIDERATIONS WHEN BUYING AN OUTDOOR KITCHEN

1

Planning!

It is essential to plan carefully, especially if you're building an outdoor kitchen. Key questions to ask yourself are how will you be using your outdoor kitchen, what features do you want it to have and where are you going to place it.

2

Different types of outdoor kitchen

Decide which type of outdoor kitchen you want. Do you want to construct the foundation of your kitchen, in which you integrate modules such as grills and doors, yourself? Or do you want a ready-to-use outdoor kitchen delivered to your home? Decide which type of outdoor kitchen you are interested in

3

Materials

Choose an outdoor kitchen made of materials that will withstand the elements. Make sure that all parts of the outdoor kitchen down to the smallest screws are made of the right material, in order to prevent your summer kitchen from rusting.

4

Different types of grill

The grill is the heart of an outdoor kitchen. Take your time when choosing a grill that is just right for you and your needs. Gas grill, charcoal grill or kamado? You decide!

5

Electricity

Are you planning on having electricity and running water? If you are planning to install the outdoor kitchen without direct connection to your home's electrical system, contact a qualified plumber and electrician!

6

Protective covers

Cover your outdoor kitchen completely to protect it from weather conditions, especially during winter. Invest in a robust cover that can withstand all the elements or choose a free-standing outdoor kitchen that you can simply wheel into the garage before winter arrives

DIFFERENT TYPES OF SS

Most stainless steel outdoor kitchens on the market are made of 430 SS steel, which is suitable for outdoor use, has some resistance to rust and is a wallet-friendly option. Most of the outdoor kitchens we provide are made of 304 SS steel, a grade of steel that provides better resistance to rust and has a longer lifespan. This is because about 10% of the steel consists of nickel - a relatively expensive element that makes 304 SS steel slightly more expensive than 430 SS steel but raises its quality considerably.

WHY CHOOSE AN OUTDOOR KITCHEN MADE OF 304 SS STEEL?

- » Life span and higher quality than other steel types
- » Non-magnetic - does not attract dirt and particles and is easy to clean
- » Easier to maintain than e.g. 430 SS steel which can rust in just a few months if you don't take care of it properly
- » Resistant to weather and wind
- » Greater resistance to rust and corrosion than other steel types
- » Approved for contact with food
- » Withstands temperatures up to 925 degrees
